Briana M. Andrews Receives Prestigious Clarion Award for Excellence in Communications

Association for Women in Communications honors Briana M. Andrews with a Clarion Award for Women in TV and Film Interactive Media / Mini-Documentary

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The Association for Women in Communications (AWC) recognized winners of its esteemed 2020 Clarion Awards competition. Briana M. Andrews has been honored for her excellence in the field of communications. The 21-year-old Roselle, NJ native currently resides in Washington, D.C., where she attends graduate school at Howard University.

Andrews was awarded a Clarion in the Student Wildcard category for her project, Women in TV and Film. This interactive media project utilized social media as a promotional avenue and culminated with the creation of a short documentary to display individual efforts toward increasing diversity and inclusion in film. This includes behind-the-scenes footage from the Andrews' produced To Each, Her Throne web series, and the Daughters of Solanas dramedy short from the New York iteration of the Women's Weekend Film Challenge. Excerpts from the project are displayed at www.womenintvandfilm.com. Andrews graduated with honors from Rowan University's College of Communication and Creative Arts in May 2019, earning a B.A. in Radio, Television, Film with a Production concentration, New Media minor and Certificate of Undergraduate Study in Public Relations and the News.

For more than 40 years, the AWC Clarion Awards have recognized small business, large corporate, nonprofit, agency and government communication specialists internationally who demonstrate excellence in clear and concise communications.

As one of the most prestigious competitions of its kind in the country, the 2020 competition attracted entries from 20 states and two countries, with entries judged by teams of experts from all aspects of the marketing and communications fields.
